

Ladies and Gentlemen
W E D D I N G S

SEASON
2026

A romantic couple in formal attire embracing at night. The man has a beard and is wearing a dark suit, while the woman has long dark hair and is wearing a dark dress. They are surrounded by warm, out-of-focus bokeh lights, creating a soft and intimate atmosphere.

Dear Ladies and Gentlemen,
Welcome to this first but very important step before you book your photographer and videographer.

I am honored that you hand picked and put a thought to book us. In this brochure we will introduce you to our philosophy, work and packages we offer.

We are all about customization, so feel free to ask for a custom package or let us know if any things are unclear.

Best regards, Matija Vuri

LOVE

Neither you nor the two of you will ever be the perfect couple. But if he manages to make you laugh, makes you think twice and if he admits that he is just a man and makes mistakes, keep him and give him as much as you can. He won't quote poetry to you, he doesn't think of you at all times, but he will give you a part of himself that he knows you can break. Don't hurt him, don't change him and don't expect more than he can give you. Don't analyze. Laugh when he makes you happy, shout at him when he makes you angry and when he is not around. If you love, love strongly. Because perfect men do not exist, but there is always one,

Go with the flow

“Our planned date was 9. May 2020, we were supposed to get married in the church of St. Catherine in the upper town, and the wedding dinner was to be in Mimara for 200 people. We had everything organized: a band, a photographer, a cameraman. We just handed out all the invitations the last weekend before the quarantine and then everything still seemed okay and then everything closed. Then Zagreb was hit by an earthquake, and passes were soon introduced. “

Martha and Martin didn't know what they were going to do until the very end.

“A week before the planned date, the government announced the abolition of passes on May 11, so we decided to move the wedding to May 16. That week it was all over open and I could go on make up and hairstyle. The wedding was in the church of St. Jerome on Maksimir, and dinner afterwards in a private space. Everything in the end was beautifully intimate and in keeping with the measurements. There were 40 people, newlyweds, godparents and immediate family. It was wonderful and romantic, we are very happy that we decided to get married in May and not postpone the wedding because of the crown. ”

The clothes they wore were also special.

“The wedding dress was made to measure by my longtime seamstress. I wanted to sew because it was important to me to be a natural material, 100 percent silk and lace. And I can say that it is financially more profitable than buying or renting a wedding dress. The suit was ordered from Suit Supply, a site that makes custom made suits, it is possible to choose the material, color, cut, buttons ... Martin wanted a classic suit with a shift, so he chose a dark green material. ”

“Matija took a photo of us Upper town and we got permission to take photos in Kaptol, which suffered great damage during the earthquake. But it was the perfect symbolism and recipe for marriage and love; There are always various dangers ahead of us, but in the end we stay together and we are stronger than ever. ”

Martha and Martins plans were different at first, but they adapted to the situation and held the wedding in the intimate circle of the family.

TRUE MOMENTS

PAIR

I've met Mindy and Jared when they were looking for a photographer for their engagement photoshoot in Split a few years ago. They really loved the photos, so a year later, they proposed to me to be their wedding photographer in Chicago.

I got to Chicago 3 days before the wedding to explore the city and to try everything what the city offers, ok, mostly for their famous deep dish pizza. The first day in Chicago I've rented a bike and after a few blocks, I've felt it is quite colder outside than it seems, so I can say the city lives up to its nickname "Windy City", the wind was blowing and I was forced to buy a jacket.

The reason why I decided to tour the city on a bike and on foot was to find the most suitable locations for Mindy and Jared's wedding photo session. But, when the day came, it was raining so we did the shooting under the roof at the train station, in only 15 minutes. Nevertheless, the photos are beautiful (you can see for yourself when you scroll a bit further down), since I've managed to make the most of this short time and location. The bride and groom were getting ready in the Westin hotel with the bridesmaids and groomsmen. Their parents also came to the hotel, so I took the family photos there. When everyone was ready, it stopped raining for a while (Lucky us!), so I did a shooting in front of the hotel with Mindy and her bridesmaids and Jared and his groomsmen.

The wedding itself was a beautiful mixture of modernity and tradition, and the venue, gallery 1028, was a perfect fit with its "industrial style meets natural elements" vibe. The ceremony and the party was held at the same space and I was overwhelmed by how fast the organizers, Olive Fine Weddings and Events, turned the space setting from the ceremonial to the dinner party setting. Mindy and her family are Sri Lankan by origin, so there were traditional Sri Lankan dancers and the breaking of a coconut in half (it is believed that breaking a coconut blesses the newlyweds with children), which really gave this romantic modern American wedding a traditional and yet exotic feeling.

I am glad I met those beautiful people and had the opportunity to be a photographer on the wedding.
